²² There are numerous legal requirements concerning the towing of a trailer, eg. speed restrictions. Many states require a separate functional braking system for your trailer once a certain weight limit is exceeded. For reasons of safety, it is recommended that all trailers use a separate functional braking system. Make sure your vehicle/trailer combination complies with local laws. This not only means where you live, but also anywhere you are driving to. Information on this can be obtained from the police and local authorities.

Observe the following when towing a trailer:

Practice driving around bends, stopping and backing up at a place where there is no traffic.
